Because It is Always Better to Give than to Receive... Valley Based Eco-Chic Consignments Reports Giving Back a Whopping 32% of Profits for 2013

(PHOENIX)- Homeless and abandoned pets, women needing work and wildlife in peril are just a handful of the causes Valley-based Eco-Chic Consignments contributed to last year, making 2013 a company record-setting year for helping others.

Eco-Chic Consignments, which is run by sisters Ann and Jenny Siner and consists of three high-end designer consignment concepts—My Sister's Closet (women), My Sister's Attic (home furnishings) and Well Suited reported giving 32% of its profits back to those in need in 2013.

“We realize our success should be shared and from the day we opened our doors in 1991, we have been giving back to the community,” said CEO and Founder Ann Siner. “Our stores contribute unsold goods and revenue to help protect our environment and support abused women. We also are passionately committed to ending the euthanasia of unwanted dogs and cats.”

Eco-Chic Consignments, which is currently a $24+ million company, has 14 locations in Arizona and California. The following is a list of charities and organizations the company supported in 2013.

AZ Humane Society
Friends of Animal Care & Control
HALO Animal Rescue
Phoenix Art Museum
Fresh Start Women's Foundation
Scottsdale Healthcare Foundation
Trends Charitable Fund
Defenders of Wildlife
Southwest Wildlife Conservation Center
Helen Woodward Animal Center (San Diego)
Rancho Coastal Humane Society (San Diego)
The Nature Conservancy
The Science Center
ASU (Women and Philanthropy)
Arizona Costume Institute
ADLA (Animal Defense League of AZ)
Yellowstone Association
The Beatitudes
Board of Visitors
Telluride Animal Foundation

Ann Siner also donated her time in 2013 by serving on the boards for Arizona Humane Society, Fresh Start, Phoenix Art Museum, The Nature Conservancy and on the national council for Defenders of Wildlife. Siner and sister Tess Loo, head stylist for the company, also co-chaired the Fresh Start Gala which raised more than $1 million in February of 2014. Additionally, Siner served as co-chair of Dinner With Wolves, a benefit for SWCC and DOW in April 2014.

The 32% calculation is purely monetary donations and does not include the hundreds of thousands of in-kind donations to thrift stores, gift cards or other promotions throughout the year.

Eco-Chic Consignments also run Project Charity, a non-profit that allows groups to create an account at any 14 locations of My Sister's Closet (women), My Sister's Attic (home furnishings) and Well Suited (men) -- and ask for donations from their supporters without anyone having to reach into their pocketbooks.

Guests can then take their gently used apparel and home furnishings to any of the consignment locations. Eco Chic Consignments will apply any sales of those items to the specified organization's account.
